BAPTIST REVIVALS BEGAN LAST NIGHT

Large Attendance at First Meeting—Rev. Gibson, of Louisville, and Fred Scholfield in Charge

"Too many preachers waste time telling their members how to build homes, how to dress and how to run their separate organizations. They are losing sight of the fact that there is only one thing to preach to people and that is soul saving." That is what the Rev. Finley F. Gibson, of the old Walnut street church in Louisville, said last night in his sermon, "Christ's Program for His Church."

There was a record breaking attendance for the first night of the revival at the First Baptist church. The Rev. J. Fred Scholfield, of Birmingham, arrived last night to conduct the song services during the meeting He was here last winter and won much favor by his excellent singing and leadership.

A sunrise prayer meeting was held at the church to precede the services yesterday Fifty-one people were present Services will be held each day at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The subject for tonight is "The Devil Hindering Christ's Program for His Church."

QUEEN OF BANDIT GANG TELLS HOW WORK WAS DONE

21-Year Old Chicago Girl And Her "Sheik" Go Into Banditry To Get Money To Marry On

ALL OF GROUP WERE YOUTHS UNDER 21

By Roy Gibons

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Elizabeth ("Honey") Sullivan, 21, who police say is confessed queen of a bandit gang of eight sleek-combed youths, bemoans the los of her pearl handled automatic while in jail here preliminary to facing a score of robbery charges.

No big Amazon, this holdup tigress de luxe, clad in her up-to-date regalia. She is a fragile slip, with wide staring eyes and a mouth that intrigues even as it pouts.

From behind the bars of the jail here today Elizabeth told the story of her life—how she first took up banditry in quest of thrills and continued it to secure money to fill her hope chest to be used when she wis to wed her alleged bandit "sheik."

She said.

"I want excitement like most girls do. I wanted to wear the latest clothes and be a flapper up to the minute.

"All day long I worked in my mother's candy store and life looked pretty stale inside the little shop when I watched the automobiles filled with women all dolleed up pass by and me with only one glad rag to my name and no place to go.

"About a year ago I met Glen. He got to be my sheik and we planned to get married some day, although he's not 21 yet.

"Both of us decided in order to bring up a family properly and live in these modern babygrand apartments we'd have to have lots of coin and the only way left for us to get it quick was with a gun.

Needed Cash

"Maybe I was working for my hope chest, Glen and his bunch were swell dressers; they used to hang around mother's shop in the afternoons when they got out of high school and often they told me that I could have the swell clothes they had too, if I'd only go out with them. They said they'd show me how to get them.

"But the clothes really weren't what really what I wanted so much as it was a nest-egg for me and Glenn to set up in a little love joint of our own with the preacher and all the trimmings to go with it.

"The first job I pulled was on the sidewalk. I had watched the rest of the gang and Glen work when they took me along and decided I could do as well.

"On my first job at was a man and woman I stuck up. I held the gun and one of the boys went through their pockets and the woman's handbag. It netted us about 200 iron men and some jewelry.

Leads To More

"That one seemed so easy that I decided to go in for the thing an earnest. During the day folks thought I was a sweet young thing, and it thrilled me to think of leading a double life.

"Well, after we had been at it for several months with the money coming easy and going the same way, Glen and I both decided to put off our marriage act for a while till we got the lay of the land better. At times I was in dread of being captured, but the cops are all a bunch of bums

"With a few glad rags myself and the rest of the gang dressed in proper cake-eating fashion. We were never suspected.

"I'm telling all of this because I don't care what happens to me and the only thing I'm sorry for is because it will hurt my mother. The gang would have been caught long ago if it hadn't been for me, though.

She was "Sheba"

"I was the leader and made them obey orders—after they elected me their Sheba. Men haven't any brains anyway—it takes a womanto pull the cool and brainy stuff.

"Several times I had to use my gun on my own gang and threaten to shoot them for geting funny when they were in tight pinches. They often showed the yellow feather.

"But my Sheak was brave and they haven't got him yet and I hope they never will.

"I guess it's all up with our hopes for the double act because the cops got most of our swag

"But I have had my thrill out of the game and will take what they hand out. No, I can't blame anything or anyone except maybe—if prices weren't so high for clothes and things you need to set up housekeeping with—perhaps Glen and I could have got married and settled own without all the money we thought we needed.

"It's sure hell for lovers these days. Why, you have to be almost a millionaire to do the harness act right.

"I'd never been in this mess on my own," opined she. "It was my Sheiks—those damned baby kids I had along with me who turned yellow—that put the kibosh on my game.

"But my own Sheik Glen— he was the cat's ankles.

"I don't know how many jobs we pulled. We averaged five or ten a night The kids always got cold feet. Why, I even had to stick a gun at the head of one and threaten to blow his brains out if he up and ran."

The bandit queen and her arrested aids have been held for the grand jary under bond, and will shortly be turned over to psychopathic experts for examination.

GREAT INTEREST HERE IN BILLY SUNDAY MEETING AT KNOXVILLE

Billy Sunday's campaign against the devil an dhis influences has opened in earnest in Knoxville. In the pine tabernacle in North Knoxville thousands daily hear his forceful and inspiring sermons.

His weeks' campaign has opened with a whirlwind. In his characteristic manner he has opened his barrages on the wickedness of the city and has declared his intention of neither giving nor asking quarters. The audience, quick to catch his enthusiasm, frequently breaks forth into loud and unrestrained applause.

People from all parts of the state and from Kentucky are going to hear the noted evangelist. A number of parties will go from Middlesboro while the revival is in progress, Being only seventy miles away, we are perhaps nearer to the Billy Sunday meeting now than we will be for some time and it is expected that many will take advantage of the opportunity.

COLDS AND FLU ARE STILL PREVALENT IN MIDDLESBORO

Colds and flu continue to rage in Middlesboro and vicinity. There are not many families in which there is not a case of the epidemic and in several cases entire families have it. Only a few fatalities have occured from it this winter and these were cases where complications have set up

Flu, in itself, is not very dangerous, according to Dr. Brosheer, but pneumonia and other complications that frequently set up render it fatal in many cases. A large number of cases among children and young people are noticed this year. Dr. Brosheer says that a person over forty-five years of age is rarely afflicted with the disease.

Local physicians are doing every thing possible to combat the epidemic All of them have their long list of patients who must be visited and treated daily.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR ADDRESSES WOMEN

Local Club Indorses Brown's Stand Against Fatty Arbuckle—Good Musical Program

Mrs. W. H. Worsham, district governor of the Woman's Club, addressed the Middlesboro Woman's club on cooperative work at its musical tea yesterday afternoon. An interesting musical program followed the address. Mrs. D. G. Hinks, president of the club, presided. The hospitality comittee had charge of the tea.

Announcement was made of the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting next Monday night, at which Dr. Anna Veech, of the state health board, wil speak on "Child Hygene." On movement of Mrs. L. L Robertson, the club indorsed the action of C. O. Brown, manager of the Manring Theatre, in not allowing any of "Fatty" Arbucle's films to be shown here.

The musical program follows: Piano solo, Schubert's "By the sea", Mrs. John Slemp; piano solo, "The Raindrop Prelude," Chopin, Miss Bertha Hoe; violin solo. Mendelsohn's "Spring Song," Miss Florence Moore, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Brown; vocal solo, "The Wind's in the South Today," Miss Elizabeth Seay, acompanied by Miss M. Rey Taylor; story, "The Brahmin, the Tiger, and the Six Judges," Miss Bessie Edwards; piano solo, "Mazurka Pomposa," Miss Margaret Campbell.

Mrs Worsham's address in substance follows:

"A vast deal of the failure of our civilization has been due to the lack of team work In a large measure in the past, man has denied woman her logical place in the great world program. It was not so in the mind of God. "God created man in His own image; in the image of God created He him; male and female criated He them and said unto them, plenish the earth and subdue it"

"In the wisdom of God, the earth is to be subdued, developed, and transformed by man and woman working in perfect co-operation In this new day that is upon us, a larger range has been granted to woman for display of her energy and ability. With these larger opportunities there will necessarily come larger responsibilities There are great things to be accomplished in the industrial, political, educational, social and religious world. Let our women enter this open door of opportunity with faith, courage, patience and determination. Then we will have a share in bringing in that great day of constructive co-operation, Christian civilization.

"Our new responsibilities require new courage. If the women of Kentucky quickly come to an adequate realization of their new power and full appreciation of their new responsibilities, they will have decisive influence in determing the character and personnel of the next legislature.

"Women's clubs have been organized for the attainment of serious objects, for the meeting of real needs, not their own save in so far as they are a part of their community. In late years women have worked many a needed reform in education, in civics, in politics, and in social uplift.

"It was decided early in the year, and brought to concrete form at the General Federation convention, that a concerted movement was to be launched by the women of this country working in conjunction with those of other countries, for the prevention of wars in the future. This was to be one of the main objectives of all clubs. Children are to be educated to the idea that war must be prevented that arbitration will and can be do away with carnage."

FOR UNDERGROUND STORAGE OF COAL

Mine Director Would Accumulate Reserves to Protect Consumer Stabilize Industry.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Underground storage of coal at the mines is suggested by H. Foster Bain, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, as a practice step toward the accumulation of reserves of fuel necessary to stabilize industry and to protect the domestic consumer in periods of acute shortage.

The seasonal demand for coal can to some extent be met by storage, Director Bain said in a report to the United States Coal Commission, but this must be done by the consumer or some distributing agency operating between him and the mine. At the mines the best place to store coal is in the ground, as with unimportant exceptions it is not feasible to provide more than a limited amount of storage above ground

Anthracite companies established near points of consumption a system of great storage piles which were valuable balance wheels to the trade and have facilitated the steadiness of operation which distinguishes anthracite from bituminous mining, Dr. Bain said, Large scale storage of bituminous coal has been less practicable because the uncertainty of future price has deterred companies and individuals from making the necessary investments. However, in certain periods as much as 60,000,000 tons of this coal have gone into storage, showing the feasibility of storing soft coal.

With proper selection of the coal and due attention to modest requirements as to methods, it is entirly practicable to store large quantities of most coal at moderate cost, he continued. The risk is in the uncertainties of future price, as the mine and railway equipment of the country is extensive enough to allow the industry, except under unusual conditions, to obtain adequate supplies direct from the mines. Coal shortage and car shortage is a local matter in normal years. The nation has put men and money into coal mining and the railways to meet peak loads rather than provide a less amount of capital for coal storage and so insure steady and economical operation.

A THOUGHT

The first condition of goodness is something to love; the second is something to reverence.—George Eliot.

RUSHING TO COVER

The senate, rushing to cover by adopting the Reed resolution to withdraw the American troops from Germany, cannot withdraw the United States of America from the world.

That only would make it certain that this country would not become involved in war should the "highly inflammable condition" of which Senator Reed speaks, result in war.

America had no troops in the line of fire when the World War began in 1914, and a majority of Americans believed that there was no probability of America becoming involved in a war between European powers. Yet America was in the war in 1917.

Withdrawing the troops to safety would bring the American flag trailing back home, when America should be in the zone of danger, as a member of the League of Nations, to prevent war by the exercise of her great influence for peace upon a basis of square dealing.—Courier Journal.

YOUR TWO MINDS

Did you ever "get stuck" for a name, date or something else that's "on the tip of the tongue" but hard to bring out of your memory.

Your conscious or objective mind strives to bring the missing information to the surface. All the time, according to students of thought processes, the missing information is stored away in your subconscious or subjective mind.

Your conscious mind forgets a lot, but your subconscious mind is supposed to remember—to store away—everything you ever encounter from cradle to grave. You've heard how, when a man is drowning, his whole life passes in review before him in a few seconds. This means, the subconscous mind simply throws its doors wide open and displays its hidden contents to the conscious mind.

Thirty-one years ago, Dr. Thompson Jay Hudson wrote a long book, "The Law of Psychic Phenomena." It towers head and shoulder above everything of a similar nature ever written.

Hudson set forth a theory that the subjective (subconscious) mind exercises complete control over the sensations and functions of the body. Also that the subconscious mind (and in turn, the functions and sensations of the body) can be controlled by suggestions made to it by the objective or conscious mind.

Here's how Hudson advised readers to cure a nervous headache:

"The suggestion must first be made that the headache is about to cease: then, that it is already ceasing: and finally, that is has ceased. These suggestions should be made in the form of spoken words, and they should be steadily persisted in until the desired effect is produced.

"A constant reiteration of the declaration that the head is better will inevitably produce the desired result. And when the effect is distinctly felt the declaration should be boldly made that the pain has entirely ceased.

"If any remnants of pain are felt, the fact should be ignored, and the suggestion persisted in that it has ceased. This should be followed by the declaration that there will be no return of the symptoms; and this should be made with an air, tone and feeling of perfect confidence."

All this, quite obviously, is a process of self-hypnotism. Hudson made quite a sensation in his day. Today only scholars are familiar with his books. But after 31 years, the tide rolls in again and the followers of Coue are suggesting to their subjective (subconscious) minds; "Every day, and in every way, I feel bette and better."

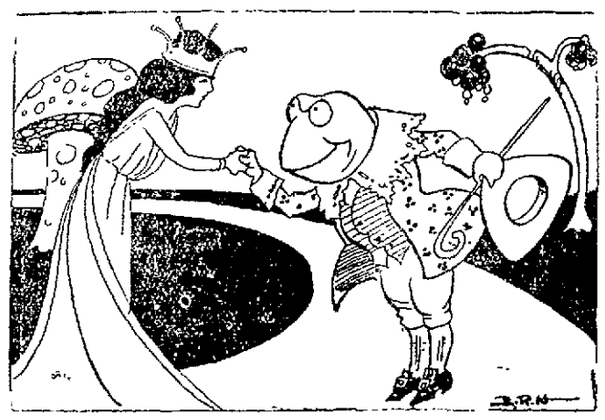
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Nancy and Nick and Dusty Coat, the fairy sandman, went to the place where Phil Frog was buried deep in the mud under Ripple Creek.

No, Philip was not dead. He was just dozing deep down underground so that Jack Frost couldn't nip him.

"I'll send him to dreamland," said Dusty Coat with a wink when the Twins had scraped away the mud around sleeping Phillip ever so softly. "I know he'll like that!

So he sprinkled some magic out of his bag over Mr. Frog and then they all tiptoed away again like little shadows.

When the magic dust began to work a little trap door opened and Philip dropped through.

He was wide awake now and much astonished, for not only had he suddenly grown quite tall but he was dressed like a prince. Knee breeches silk stockings, fine shoes with silver buckles, a velvet coat with lace ruffles, a cocked hat and a cane.

"Welcome to Dreamland!" said a silvery voice and a lovely princess in a white dress came near and took his hand.

"Thank you," answered Philip with a grand bow. "I didn't know I was expected. I came rather suddenly, I believe."

"Oh, no! We have been expecting you for days," said the princess graciously. "Nancy and Dick and Dusty Coat sent us word that you would be here. All the servants in the palace have been getting things ready for you."

"That's very thoughtful of everybody," declared Philip gratefully, "but may I ask if owls or ducks are plentiful in this country?" and he looked around uneasily. "I have to be very careful of my health."

"Have no fear," answered the princess. "We have seen to that. Come now, sit here under this large mushroom umbrella and you shall be served with fly soup, fricasseed grasshopper's legs, mosquito salad, and a fine dessert of dragon-flies."

Philip grinned with a satisfied grin and licked his lips.

"Dreamland must be the place I've always dreamed about," said he politely.

PREPARE FOR BIG SUMMER FOR ROAD WORK IN BELL CO.

Middlesboro-Manring Paved Road And Barbourville-Pineville Grade Accepted—Surface Contract Later

BARBOURVILLE-CORBIN SURVEY NOW UNDER WAY

Two Bell county road projects have been accepted by the State Highway Department and with winter coming on the local office of Steve Watkins, division engineer, is busy preparing for big summer doings in road affairs. The Barbourville-Pineville grade and drainage project, in the hands of Davis and Graham, contractors, for the past two years, and accepted by the department after Mr. Watkins had made a final inspection, and the final reports and estimates were forwarded to Frankfort. The other project accepted was the Middlesboro-Manring road to Bosworth on the Tennessee line. The two roads represent approximately $285,000, of which $205,000 were spent on the Barbourville road and $80,000 on the Manring road.

Contract for surfacing the Barbourville road, 11.3 miles, with concrete base and asphalt top, already has been let to Metzel, O'Hearne, Vastine and Lowery, of Covington, and Mr. Metzel was in Pineville making arrangements with the railroad for new spur tracks on which to deliver material for the surface job. The cost of the surface job, as per contract, is $238,000, making a total cost of approximately $550,000 for the eleven miles of road when completed.

The Manring road is bituminous penetration macadam type costing completed approximately $80,000.

L. L. Persall, chief location engineer of the State Commision, was in Pineville in conference with Mr Watkins regarding the engineering work on the Barbourville-Corbin road, now under way, and gives promises of geting this grading and drainage work under way by spring.

The Middlesboro-Manring road is the beginning of what may be later a 50-mile airline to Knoxville, unimproved at present, but which may be a completely improved road within three or four years. With other Kentucky links under improvement at present the surfacing of the Corbin-Pineville road would give an all-year road from Cincinnati to Knoxville.—Appalachian Trade Journal

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

SAD LIVES

By Berton Braley

The people who live in an underwear ad
Must have an embarassed career,
They're forced to go 'round pretty near unclad
Except for some underwear sheer,
Or woolens, of course, when the weather is bad
Along at this time of the year.
And dressed in such fashion—it's quite negligee.
They have to go forth to their work or their play.

And then there's the case of the hosiery maid;
Who's seldom permitted to dress,
But has to be more or less lightly arrayed
(It couldn't be very much less)
In order that hosiery may be displayed
In all its luxuriousness.
(Poor girl, and she's pretty and dainty no doubt.
She's kept in her boudoir and never let out.)

But saddest of all is the life of the woman
Who lives in the bath night and day.
In order that pictures of her may illumine
The ads which the plumbers display,
For all that she wears—it is rather inhuman,
Is simply a mantle of spray.
Observing these unlucky people, I'm glad
That I do not live in a magazine ad!

KATE WARD, living with her widower father,
JUSTIN PARSONS, is visited by
CHINATOWN ALICE, with the story that Kate's dead husband
DAN WARD, was the father of Alice's child,
DOROTHY. A little later hearing that Dorothy is all Kate calls on Alice at the laundry of SING LOY, with whom Alice lives, to offer aid but meets only with evasion and deceit. Talking this puzzle over with her father a few evenings later she and Justine are led by their dog,
MONK, to a lonely gully where they find the body of an unconscious man. After having carried him to their home, Kate finds on an envelope in his pocket the name:
JAMES LATHAM.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

JUSTIN PARSONS took the envelope from his daughter's hand. One arm around her, he held her while he read the name.

"She told me about it—she told me about it—that woman who talked to me in the dark!" Kate's voice was low, breathless. "Don't you remember? The voice that I have heard three times told me; the last time, I'd meet someone named James?"

"Yes—yes daughter." Justin was puzzled he spoke slowly.

"But it couldn't have any connection with this, could it? I was dreaming of something—wasn't I?" Kate was once more possessed of herself. Nevertheless she was not so sure but what she wanted her father's assurance. She wanted him to say "yes," that she had been dreaming, that the voice she thought she had heard had nothing whatever to do with this incident.

She turned he thought to other channels.

"We must get a doctor right away," she said. "Will you go—while I watch?"

Justin Parsons was on his way shortly, while Kate sat beside the unconscious man on the couch. As she watched she turned the events of the past few days over in her mind, she couldn't get away from the fact that his name was James. She glanced down the line of his figure. He was slender—quite slender. She caught her breath, sat erect, was held taut by a new thought.

Could this man—this man who lay before her—bruised and unconscious, be the one with whom she saw Alice walking?

There was a disturbing similarity in the figure. The injured man seemed slightly heavier of the two, but it would be easy to be mistaken about such a matter, for she reasoned, she had only a glimpse of the man as he walked with the girl.

Kate watched his lips. They moved slightly. If he would only speak. Then she would know! She never forgot voices. And she had heard his voice very distinctly.

Alice—Dorothy—the voice—this stranger. It was maddening. What did it all mean. What connection had each with the other.

And Dan! What had he been to all of these people? Had he been anything to them? By what right had they walked ruthlessly into her dream castle and robbed it of the thing which had made it beautiful—her ideal of love the one great love?

Why?

Steps on the path. Someone was coming.

The door opened. Justin and a physician entered the room.

Emile Coue Addressing a Class of Patients in his Home at Nancy, France.

GIVE YOURSELF A CHANCE, COUE SAYS

If You Keep Telling Yourself You Are Better You Will Be He Argues

By Milton Bronner

NANCY, France, Jan. 9.—"And how are we felling today?"

It is Monsieur Emile Coue addressing the writer at the autosuggestion leader's home in Nancy. It is my second clinic. He remembers that I am there because I am supposed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Coue doesn't know I'm merely supposed to be suffering from "nerves." And acting up to my part I am dead sore because so little attention has been paid to Me.

"Can't see much improvement," I mutter. "I don't sleep at night. My appetite is bad and I don't digest my food. I—"

"My dear chap," interrupts Coue, "why don't you catalogue all of your ills? If you go on at that rate searching yourself in that way, every day you wil discover more pains and more symptoms. Try to get yourself into the frame of mind by the formula, 'every day and in every way, I am getting better and better.'"

"Isn't that a form of self-hypnotism?" I ask, peevishly.

Coue smiles. "Call it what you want. But don't be too analytical. Don't intellectualize too much over the thing. All that I ask you to do is to give the principal a sporting chance. See whether it will do what I claim.

"You are bound to know something of the powers of autosuggestion. You are familiar with the old story of four or five persons at different intervals telling a person how pale he looks, how badly he looks, until the man goes home really feeling ill.

"If by suggestion you can suggest bad things to others and to yourself, why not suggest good things? Look here."

Difference In Doctors

"For years I was a busy druggist in my pharmacy I made up the prescriptions the doctors gave their patients.

"I said to myself some of those drugs would not cure anything. Perhaps it was the combination of drugs that did the work. But no. Sometimes the same prescription given to two different persons, cured one and left the other unaided.

"Then I got the key of it. One doctor gave the medicine and said to his patient "Tomorrow you will be ever so much better." The other doctor simply gave the medicine without comment, or even expressed doubt as to the certainty of its effect.

"The one doctor brought about autosuggestion in his patient, the other did not.

"Remember our unconscious self is both our slave and a king. The slave king is seated on a throne. We tell this slave what to do and it then rules us.

"If you keep telling yourself over and over 'Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better,' your slave will see to it that this statement becomes a fact.

Above all, avoid demon doubt.

Give Yourself A Chance

"I'm not asking you to give me a chance. I am asking you to give yourself a chance.

"If you stay here long enough you will see people who have given themselves that chance and who are ever so much happier as the result. They have found a way to get rid of pain and disease.

"I don't claim to work miracles. As a matter of fact, I don't. I simply help people to help themselves. I point out the way."

TOMORROW—Bronner sees Coue cure some sick minds.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

MIDDLESBORO DAILY NEWS

Lack of Warm Clothing Makes New Year a Holiday of Fear to Russians in Grip of Bitter Cold

If New Year's Day, usually a festive date, will be a holiday of fear for at least a million Russian children and their elders. In ringing out the old, they are ringing out the famine of 1922. But in ringing in the new, they are ushering in a continuation of the terrible clothing shortage that today has Russia in its grip.

American—Relief Administration workers in every part of Russia declare that children and adults alike have no protection against the bitter weather of January except single garments of unbelievably tattered rags, or of thin flour sacking through which their bare skins show, or even of newspapers stitched together as a substitute for cloth. Children in orphanages huddle together, too cold to play, and in their own homes refuse to venture out-of-doors, even to go to A. R. A. kitchens for their one meal a day. Adults are equally wretched in unheated houses. The price of fuel, like the price of clothing, is utterly prohibitive. An overcoat costs a year's pay, but coal cannot be secured at any price, and wood to cook a meal costs more than the meal itself.

Herbert Hoover estimates, basing his figures upon reports of A. R. A. workers in Russia, that at least a million children and adults will die during the first few weeks of 1923 unless clothing is sent to them. To make it possible for friends, relatives and sympathizers in the United States to come to the aid of these stricken Russians the American Relief Administration has inaugurated a new clothing remittance package, functioning exactly like the food remittance package of last year. It costs $20, at the New York headquarters of the A. R. A., 42 Broadway, to have one of these clothing packages delivered into the hands of any designated individual in Russia, or distributed to some undesignated needy case, just as specified by the donor. A receipt will come back to the sender of each package from the Russian who gets the clothing.

Each package contains enough material to save at least two persons from dying of the cold. The items are as follows: 4⅓ yards of 56-inch 20-ounce dark blue wool cloth, sufficient for a suit of clothes for an adult, or outer garments for two children; 4 yards of black cotton lining; 16 yards of muslin, sufficient for four suits of underwear; 8 yards of flannelette, sufficient for two men's shirts or two women's shirtwaists; buttons and thread to make up this material.

Mr. Hoover's work among the nations of Europe, says the January issue of "Our World" magazine, has made him the "Envoy of Understanding" in carrying America's support in a way that prevented Europe's collapse. And now with millions of persons in Russia "too cold to eat," as the magazine puts it, he has undertaken the plan outlined above to furnish clothing to replace "tatters that were garments eight years ago."

OUT OF DOORS

Outdoors, to me
Is Art and Poetry,
Music and Dancing;
These four all rolled into one.

Outdoors is a Whistler water color
Such as Battersea Bridge.

Outdoors is one
Of Amy Lowell's cadenced rhymes,
Colorful and tinkling.

Outdoors is Galli-Curci
Warbling the aria from 'Lucia."

Outdoors is like Pavlowa,
A rose petal floating in the air.

Such is the outdoors to me;
Art, and Poetry,
Music and Dancing,
All blended together.

Do you wonder
That I love it?

Clapping the hands is a natural form of applause and entertainers appreciate it. But stamping, whistling or any other unduly noisy acclamation is bad form. Even hand-clapping at the wrong time or needlessly prolonged, annoys entertainers and audience alike. A short, hearty round of applause at the right moment is quite n place, but there it should stop.

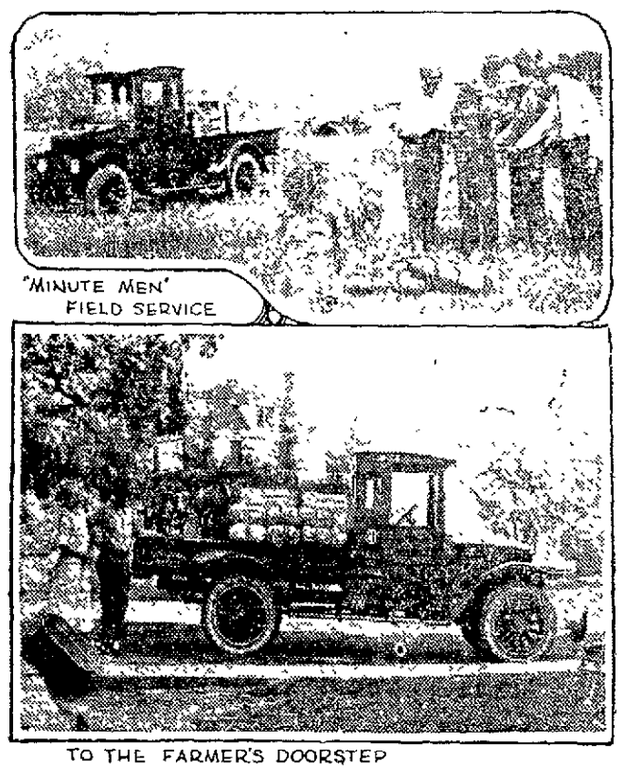
NEW FLEET OF SCARLET SPEEDERS LINK FARMYARD WITH CITY DEALER



TO THE FARMER'S DOORSTEP

A new link has been forged in the chain that connects the farm with the city. First the passenger car—now ten million strong—revolutionized the social side of country life. Then the motor truck developed to a capacity which hauls 1,500,000,000 tons of freight one mile a year.

Now comes the Red Baby. It is a high-powered service truck that can speed like a fire engine to a harvest field or to a dairy farm to make machinery repairs, furnish supplies and otherwise aid the farmer. It is estimated that when the service is in full swing it will save American farmers millions of dollars annually by relieving emergencies at those critical periods when delays involve gigantic losses.

Thousands of these service vehicles are chugging through the rural districts from New York to California and from the Canadian Northwest to Texas. Like the Scarlet Riders of the far north, they live on the roads. They make it possible for the farmer to get precisely the same service that the city man gets from the man who delivers milk to his door. With extension of the good roads program the service will eventually be expanded to every one of America's 6,500,000 farmers.

The trucks cannot be purchased by the public. They are owned only by McCormick-Deering dealers, of which there are over 15,000 scattered across the country. This new fleet of "quick serve" motors made by the International Harvester Company, already is completely revolutionizing the old methods of serving the farmer "at the earliest convenience," which once meant from one day to two weeks.

For 10 individual patty or muffin tins, a paste made with 1 1-2 cups of flour, one-half teaspoon salt and 1-2 cup of shortening will be needed.

Roll paste to 1-4 inch thickness, cover bottoms of tins and bake 10 to 12 minutes in a hot oven.

Remove from tins and fill with:

One cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons corn starch, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1 cup boiling water.

Mix sugar, flour, cornstarch and salt together, add boiling water and cook constantly directly over the fire.

When the mixture is clear, place pan over water and cook 15 minutes. Then add:

Yolk of 3 eggs, juice of 2 lemons, grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons butter.

Cook five minutes, remove from fire and cool.

Fill pastry shells and cover each with meringue made by beating until stiff the whites of 3 eggs and adding 1-2 cup powdered sugar and 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Set in a moderate oven to brown delicately.

ALLIED CONFERENCE IS FOREDOOMED

By Leonard P. Ayres
Former Chief Statistical Officer,

From reports and rumors that are coming from Europe, it now seems probable that the premiers will reach a decision at their forthcoming conference, and that this decision will include at least three principal conditions.

The first will be that Germany must raise a forced internal loan in gold through the sale of her foreign investments.

The second is that she must submit to the direct supervision of her financial and economic polices by representatives of the allied nations.

The third condition will probably be that she will be granted a moratorium of perhaps two years with respect to money payments on her indebtedness, but she must continue her payments of coal, wood and other commodities.

As we enter 1923 the prospects of any such temporary settlement cannot be viewed with great hopefulness. One thing that seems all too clear is that European conditions in 1923 will be worse tha nthey have been in any other year since the armistice. Moreover, these bad conditions are general and not restricted in Europe is spending more than its income, and is consuming more than it produces.

Among the nations which are experiencing less difficulty in an industrial way are those where financial problems are most pressing. Among economic, financial and political problems of Europe. The problems are too intimately related and the industrial life of each nation is too fundamentally dependent on the welfare of the neighboring nations to make possible at this late date any genuine betterment through a mere temporary set of concessions relating to Germany alone.

Europe needs a general settlement participated in by all the important nations of the western portion of the continent and embracing mutal agreements as to the stabilization of currencies, the remission of international indebtedness, the mitigation of customs barriers as well as the problems centering around Germany's reparation obligations.

Such a general settlement will involve looking the existing situation frankly in the face and restoring the gold standard for currencies through the distasteful methods of changing the par values of most currencies of Europe.

The difficulties involved are political quite as much as economic, but the statesmen of the old world and of the new must grapple with these problems and crowd them for many more months have gone by, or face as an alternative a culmination of a widespread disaster that everyone must dread to contemplate.

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist
Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys
Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before breakfast occasionally.
Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish, ache and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region; you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.
Drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.
Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in correcting kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH
How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.
Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.
Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

If You Need a Medecine You Should have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicine preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benifited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a prparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmers Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, bladder and liver ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer and Company, Binghampton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.
